A Doorway of Your Own

A small working for the welcome you offer and the boundaries you keep.

GATHER · ABOUT 5 MINUTES

Paper, a pen and a dry cloth. Use the card on page two, or make your own. Choose a doorway you are allowed to tend.

01 Clear a little space

Wipe a small part of the inside doorframe with the dry cloth. Leave the doorway and its hardware clear.

02 Choose your welcome

Name one quality you want to bring into this space: rest, kindness, creative focus, or another quality of your own.

03 Name one boundary

Write one boundary you can practice here. For example: "I put work away when I enter this room."

04 Draw the threshold mark

On your paper, draw an arch, a line beneath it and a dot inside. Use the guide on the next page.

05 Speak and place

Hold your card, speak the words below, then place it on the inside of your door or nearby in your journal. Thank the threshold and close the working.

WORDS AT THE THRESHOLD

"By arch and line, by chosen word,
I welcome care into this space.
I keep the boundary I have named.
I enter with intention; I leave with my own peace."

Return to the card when you tidy this space. Read your words, trace the mark with a fingertip and choose one small action that honors your boundary. Replace the card when your intention changes.

No flame, smoke, salt or oils are needed. Attach only where permitted; keep locks, latches and exits unobstructed.

Make the boundary your own

Cut out the card along the dotted line, or copy it by hand. Print at 100% / actual size.

MY THRESHOLD

I welcome care.
I keep my boundaries.
I choose what I carry across this threshold.

THE WITCH'S VESSEL

THE THREE STROKES

Arch: the space you tend. Line: the boundary you choose.
Dot: your attention, brought home to the present.

An original working mark for this kit. Draw it slowly; it needs no special tools or perfect lines.

The quality I welcome

The boundary I will practice

One small action I can take today

Print again for your own practice. Personal use.